David Schwimmer

David Schwimmer Reconnects With His College Improv Buddy Stephen Colbert

David Schwimmer Spoke at Seth Meyers' College Graduation - David Schwimmer discusses using improv for his role as an "ignorant, narcissistic" NSA agent in Peacock's new show Intelligence and bonds with Seth over their Northwestern University backgrounds.

Wikipedia

David Schwimmer returns to Northwestern roots to discuss career

No Fun Mud Piranhas No Fun Mud Piranhas is NU's only audition-free improv group. While the group has faded and reappeared several times over the years (it was most recently revived last year after a pandemic lull), its alumni roster rivals those of more well-known comedy groups on campus, with names like David Schwimmer (Communication '88) and Stephen Colbert (Communication '86). The group meets weekly with periodic performances.

David Schwimmer recalls how his time at Northwestern shaped his career - Chicago Tribune

'October 8': Medill alum's new documentary sheds light on rising antisemitism in universities since Israel-Hamas war - Northwestern Hillel and End Jew Hatred hosted a screening of "October 8" — a documentary exploring the surge of antisemitism on U.S. college campuses, social media and beyond since Hamas' Oct. 7, 2023 attack on Israel — Monday evening in Medill's McCormick Foundation Center.

In an emotional compilation of interviews with about 40 people — including activists, authors, college students and university faculty — the documentary tells the story of Jewish and non-Jewish individuals within the past year. …………In terms of the pushback, Sachs said she feels "ready for it." She said she is grateful to have the support of important faces in the industry — including David Schwimmer, who attended the screening Monday evening.

"You look around, you find your people on campus, you proudly identify, you wear your Jewish star or your kipa," Sachs told attendees. "Know we are not alone."

Lookingglass Theatre Company builds community and inventive art through its unique ensemble-based approach

"A group of Northwestern students, led by David Schwimmer (Communication '88), put on an experimental production of "Alice in Wonderland" in 1987, inspired by a similar production at NYU.

The group took their "Alice in Wonderland" piece to the Edinburgh Festival Fringe that summer, and afterwards they decided to found a theater company dedicated to the ensemble-based, physical style of the production. That company grew into Lookingglass Theatre Company.

A group of Northwestern students, led by David Schwimmer (Communication '88), put on an experimental production of "Alice in Wonderland" in 1987, inspired by a similar production at NYU.

The group took their "Alice in Wonderland" piece to the Edinburgh Festival Fringe that summer, and afterwards they decided to found a theater company dedicated to the ensemble-based, physical style of the production. That company grew into Lookingglass Theatre Company……………..Many company members continue to return to Lookingglass even after they stop consistently participating in projects. White said the company, especially the founding members, have grown up together, and have experienced life together, making their personal and artistic relationships even more fulfilling." - https://lookingglasstheatre.org/people/david-schwimmer-2/

'Friends' star David Schwimmer celebrates reopening of Chicago's Lookingglass Theatre - Jan 27, 2025
Chicago's Lookingglass Theatre Company is ready to reopen its doors for the first time in nearly two years

Northwestern alumni dominate Emmys, break records - September 18, 2016
Northwestern alumni won big at the 68th Primetime Emmy Awards in Los Angeles, including Julia Louis-Dreyfus' fifth consecutive award for her role in "Veep."

David Schwimmer on College, Directing & Writing | Intelligence Squared - David Schwimmer, who is perhaps best known for his role on the television sitcom Friends, joins Intelligence Squared to discuss his time at college. In this conversation with Nick Mohammed and Samira Ahmed, he looks back at the actions that set him down the path to becoming the actor, director and writer that he is today.

David Schwimmer Opens Up About Mental Blocks During Friends | Friday Night With Jonathan Ross

David Schwimmer: Beyond 'Friends' - The Man Behind Ross Geller